Maximize the winning effects of downtime.

WANT MORE DETAILS? WE THOUGHT YOU MIGHT.

1. FORAGE Every horse has the same basic need to keep intestines moving with a constant source of roughage such as hay or grass. These fibers promote healthy microflora in the large intestine, and keep the overall intestinal health of the horse on track. Feed high quality hay in multiple small meals a day (slow feeders if you can do those) to replicate free foraging as much as possible. Skimping on hay is the fastest way to build problems and ultimately waste money.

2. ADD CALORIES By adding calories in a healthy, strategic way, you ensure a happy, fresh performer who feels great and performs to his highest level. Start with the goal: calories for Arabian show horses are to add fire, muscle, or both.

To display fire, Arabians requires mainly anaerobic energy; that is, the energy conversion takes place without the aid of oxygen. For this, horses need sources of quickly absorbable energy such as processed cereal grains. Cavalor feeds use puffed cereals for unparalleled absorption of starch and sugar in the small intestine, which increases feed efficiency (you can feed less), which in turn helps keep the digestion operating as nature intended and significantly reduces the risk of issues. The impact of puffing the cereals, versus whole or crimped, cannot be overestimated in how it positively affects both digestion (for health) and absorption (maximum fuel for performance).

To add muscle, the horse needs a plentiful supply of the right kind of proteins, with the feed's three amino acids (lysine, methionine and cysteine) in approximately the same ratio as in muscle protein. Cereal grains have a completely different ratio than animal protein, so a horse will be able to form more muscle protein from soybeans than from an equal amount of wheat.

3. FEED Cavalor has three feeds to suggest for the competitive Arabian horse, fine tuned for individual genetic types and personalities. Use interchangeably, without a crossover period, in varying ratios that gave you more energy when you need it. Look to Cavalor Superforce + Cavalor Kick Up + Cavalor An Energy Boost for fiery brilliance, and Cavalor Shine & Show for muscle building (or alternatively, Cavalor Strucomix + Cavalor Muscle Force + Cavalor OilMega). Naturally, you can also add Cavalor Kick Up + Cavalor An Energy Boost to your muscle-building program to add fire, or vice-versa Cavalor Muscle Force + Cavalor OilMega to your fire-building program to add muscle.

4. SHINE More than any other major breed, Arabian show horses need to display a mirror shine. And as all good horsemen know, the primary driver of that is nutrition. Horses fed on a recommended Cavalor program glow from within, and for that finishing touch, just add Cavalor OilMega, a supplement with a healthy omega fatty acid profile.

5. IMMUNITY Our research indicates most show horses with no outward sign of illness have compromised blood profiles due to travel and show stress, leaving them at risk for illness, and impacting their show performance. Gut health is the basis for a good immune system, and Cavalor is relentlessly focused on providing that support it's every performance profile. With Cavalor is your base, we then recommend Cavalor products Emergency 911 microflora, hydration-promoting Mash & Mix, and Resist + VitC ahead of a long journey or during competition season. It's been proven in field use that horses suffer less from skin irritations — even in troublesome Florida — when they are on Resist + VitC.

6 NOW GO WIN Two days before a competition, start using the Cavalor secret one-two punch to go out and win. Hard workers are always a little stiff or sore, and Cavalor FreeBute gives them the relief they need to feel great and give it their all. Cavalor Muscle Fit has a similar effect, this time on the muscles, by reducing lactic acid buildup, and even more importantly, by stimulating its breakdown. This eases stiffness, promotes suppleness, and maximizes muscle activity and ability for the edge you need to win.

7. AH...VACATION! Horses being let down from work also need to be let down from their performance feed. Feed as you need! Leverage layups and letdowns into future high performance and success with Cavalor FiberForce feed, and Cavalor Hepato Liq to detox.
